—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

STRANGE, INTERESTING, encouraging and discouraging events make up a day's news on this earth.

Two airplanes will race across the Pacific Ocean.

Tomorrow Mrs. Hoover will baptize the great dirigible built for the Navy at Akron, O. The dirigible will carry five airplanes, to be released with machine guns, explosive and gas bombs when needed, and is built to rise more rapidly than any airplane. Its safe helium gas will prevent fire or explosion.

THE NAVY PLANS to build six submarines and spend eighty-eight millions on fighting airplanes in 1933, proposing a naval moratorium for two years, meanwhile.

The airplane building is called "a sop to little Navy Congressmen." There are Congressmen who know our Navy should have modern ships under and above the water, submarines and aircraft, not expensive floating targets for enemy aircraft to sink. There are no "little Navy Congressmen."

THE NEW YORK Jewish Board of Guardians tell this story. Private detectives hired to protect slot machines from thieves compelled boys, once convicted, to persuade other boys to rob the machines, letting the detectives know when the robberies would occur.

The detectives arrested the boys thus tempted, sent them to jail, improving the detectives' records for vigilance.

THE WESTERN grasshopper plague recalls one of the early and gratifying Mormon miracles. In 1847 the first Mormons mournfully watched grasshoppers destroying all their crops in Salt Lake valley.

Suddenly great flocks of sea gulls appeared, ate the grasshoppers, ended the plague. Plainly Heaven had sent them. Nothing so convincing had happened since the dove flew down, rested on Mohammed's shoulder, whispered in his ear. The faithful saw a message from Allah.

They did not know that the pigeon had been trained to eat dried peas from the prophet's ear.

ONCE IN THE Northwest, a long way from the Pacific, a plague of field mice was destroying everything in sight, when sea gulls came over the mountains from the ocean and ate the mice.

Mr. Bailey, head of government's small mammals department, in charge of the mice, offered no miracle explanation but admired the sea gulls' intelligence.

THE LINDBERGHS flying into Point Barrow, will have at their disposal the only bath in the place.

It belongs, fortunately, to their host.

That "only one bath tub" surprises us, as our grandfathers were surprised when told that a bath tub was first to be installed in the White House.

A great majority of the grandfathers denounced the effeminate extravagance, saying that the President, like his predecessors, should be content to walk down to the Potomac, just back of the White House, if he thought a bath necessary.

IN VERA CRUZ a volcanic eruption by Mount Tlanapa has buried men and women under tons of dirt.

The mountain, never before violent within memory of man, acted badly. With underground rumblings and the opening of a wide fissure in the mountain side, great streams of mud and water poured in nearby houses.

THAT MIGHT BE considered a miracle, rebuking interference with the church by the Vera Cruz government, and is doubtless so interpreted by many, although the volcano did not hurt the Governor responsible for driving out the clergy. It may have frightened him. It is hard on the 10 buried alive.

THE REPUBLIC Steel Corporation's salaried employes, at Youngstown, O., started work yesterday under a wage reduction of 16⅔ per cent. They will work only five days a week, at the old rate, per day. Other workers are not affected.

Such cuts remind the man with the white collar that there is virtue in unions when hard times come. But even unions may have to choose between wage reductions and a shut down.

PRESIDENT GREEN, of the American Federation of Labor, predicts disorder if the depression lasts, and wants government and industry to prevent it. It is dangerous to predict disorder, for predictions sometimes promote realization.

Mr. Green's idea, however, may be to give capital a "little scare" to promote action.

Nothing is as timid as "big money." It is more timid than a pink-eyed rabbit faced by a roaring lion.

"Big money" says:

"Think of us, lending out millions at half of 1 per cent a year interest. Why waste your sympathy on the man without a job?"

JAMES GOODWIN HALL, head of the anti-prohibition "Crusaders," flies for amusement, continues to break records, and has just made the round trip from New York to Chicago and back in 9 hours and 56 minutes, beating the time of the crack flier, Hawks, from Chicago to

COUNTERFEIT SUSPECTS JAILED

Woman, Daughter and Four Men Held on Charge of Circulating Bogus Coins

A mother and daughter and four men were arrested today, accused of making and circulating counterfeit quarters. The mother and daughter, according to the Secret Service operatives, were used in circulating the spurious coins, many of which had been passed in Homestead and other Monongahela Valley towns.

Edgar Critchfield, 26, of 148 Whitaker street, and Charles C. Wilding, 21, of 128 Whitaker street, both of Whitaker, were first arrested and after they had been held for court city detectives working in conjunction with the federal officers arrested Mrs. Anna Kascmar, 48, and her daughter Margaret, 17, of 150 Schwab avenue; Clarence Schneider, 28, of 182 Virginia street, and Earl Wise, 26, of 158 Marigold street, all of Munhall.

Critchfield and Wilding were released on $2,000 bond and the others are to be arraigned later.

2 FACE QUIZ IN CURRAN MURDER

Girl's Clue Hints Suspect May Have Driven Death Car in Racketeer Killing

Two men were being held by police today for questioning about the murder of Morris Curran, alleged beer supplies racketeer, who was shot to death June 24 as he walked from his unfinished home at 2918 Perrysville avenue.

They are Frank Abbott, 28, of 19 Lecky avenue, and Dominick Dago, 25, Prebel avenue.

Police said Abbott was partially identified as the driver of the sedan in which the killers escaped.

"STAND-UP" SLATED

A 14-year-old girl who, according to Woods Run police, made her identification from a photograph, will be taken to detective headquarters today and asked to pick Abbott from a "stand-up" of prisoners.

Both Abbott and Dago deny any connection with the slaying.

Coroner W. J. McGregor today fixed next Thursday as the date of the inquest.

Police have held two theories as to the motive behind Curran's killing. One was that he was slain in revenge for other killings in a gang war, the other that a woman was involved.

The first theory, which is the one favored by the police, originated, city detectives said, in their knowledge that Curran was a sworn and bitter enemy of the Monastero brothers, once beer barons of the North Side, two of whom have been murdered within the last two years.

KILLINGS RECALLED

Steve Monastero was killed by rival gunmen as he and his brother, Sam, left St. John's Hospital, where they had gone to visit a friend exactly two years ago today.

Just about a year later, Sam Monastero went for a ride alone in his armored coupe. He was found dead, strangled with his own necktie, apparently as he sat in his car just off Jacks Run road.

Mystery Blast Destroys 2 Homes In Blythedale; Bombing Blamed

SMALL, SCATTERED BITS OF RUINS OF THE ROMAN AND VEZANI RESIDENCES . . . . BLOWN APART TODAY AT BLYTHEDALE

WOMAN, 2 HURT BY EXPLOSION

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a mysterious explosion presumably caused by a bomb which destroyed two houses at Blythedale, a mining community of 1,200 near the Allegheny-Westmoreland County line early today.

Scores of residents of nearby houses were hurled from their beds by the blast which was heard over widespread territory.

Mrs. Angeline Vitori, 50, wife of Postmaster Frank Vitori, struck by falling timbers, was hurt seriously. She was unconscious for several hours after the blast and physicians said she may be paralyzed. Others hurt were Anthony Vitori, 26, who was cut by flying glass when hurled from his bed, and Alex Roman, 37, cut by flying glass.

PICKET'S STORY

The explosion is believed to have occurred underneath the home of Roman, a member of the National Miners' Union. Roman, who has been doing picket duty at the Warden mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, where most of the Blythedale population is employed, said he was awakened at 5:30 a. m. by a peculiar odor. He said:

"I left the house and started to investigate, but could find nothing. Then I returned home and as I started to get back into

HOOVER HELD OPPOSED TO REGULATION

Operators, Miners Express Views on Plan Projected By Pittsburgh Producers

The proposal considered by Pittsburgh coal operators, as revealed exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, that the federal government be asked to regulate the coal industry as a public utility leaped into national prominence today as an economic issue. These were the outstanding developments:

1—Northern West Virginia operators announced they would meet next Monday to study the proposal.

2—President Hoover was reported in Washington dispatches to be unfavorable to the plan.

3—J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, disclosed that the local operators brought the subject up at a recent meeting with Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont in Washington.

4—Coal operators interviewed in regard to government regulation for the most part favored the plan.

5—Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, an advocate of federal control of the coal industry, commented that the operators have "at last seen the light."

6—Gov. Pinchot said the suggestion was too indefinite for him to express an opinion.

7—Anthracite operators showed no enthusiasm for the plan.

Prospects are that the proposal will be one of the important questions before the next Congress, with the United Mine Workers and a large section of the operators advocating it. It is expected they will be assisted by economists and others who declare rehabilitation of the coal industry can be effected in no other way than by government regulation, and that the welfare of not only the operators and miners but of all the people depends upon the recovery of prosperity in this basic branch of commerce.

BURDEN OPPOSED

Opposed to the plan will be those who take the stand that the government should not be asked to bear the burden and expense of regulating a mismanaged industry.

In view of a Supreme Court decision that the coal business is not interstate commerce, it is suggested that the constitutionality of the plan may be questioned.

General approval of the suggestion that federal regulation similar to that given the railroads offered the most logical solution for the troubles of the coal indus-

INDEPENDENTS PICKING SLATE

A full independent ticket will be entered both in the primary and general election, Allegheny County voters were assured today. Details of the ticket were discussed at a conference last night in the Keystone Athletic Club.

There will be another such meeting tonight, when it is expected that candidates will be definitely selected. Announcement of the ticket will probably be made Sunday. Monday is the last day to file petitions.

Last night's meeting was attended by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Councilmen Robert Garland and Charles Anderson, former Councilman P. J. McArdle, Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Smith and former Senator C. M. Barr.

None would discuss the details of the meeting.

TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Sheriff Cain Quits Commissioner Race

Cain first had secured petitions for the commissionership and for treasurer. Only the treasurer petitions were filed.

FAROE ISLANDS CRAMER GOAL

By AXEL THORSTEINSEN
International News Service.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 7.—Mapping out a projected air mail route across the sub-Arctic regions, Parker Cramer, daring Clarion (Pa.) flier, left Reykjavik at 2:10 p. m. this afternoon for the Faroe Islands.

The distance from Reykjavik to the Faroes is approximately 500 miles.

Cramer brought his oil-burning monoplane down at Reykjavik after a seven-hour flight of 500 miles over the Atlantic from Angmagsalik, Greenland.

Cramer reached Reykjavik at 1:55 a. m. today (10:55 p. m. yesterday, Pittsburgh time), having left Angmagsalik at 2 p. m. yesterday (9 a. m. Pittsburgh time).

With Cramer was Oliver Pasquette, Canadian radio operator. The two started, unannounced, from Detroit, July 28, to blaze a northeast air mail route to Copenhagen and Central European points via Greenland, Iceland and other intermediate places.

One of the outstanding features of Cramer's flight from Detroit was the successful use of an oil-burning engine. All previous ocean fliers have used special flight gasoline, but Cramer used ordinary crude oil, such as that employed on ocean liners.

The flight across the Greenland icecape was the first ever completed. In 1928 Cramer was forced down in attempting that crossing and was rescued by government searching parties.

DO-X STARTS 1,150-MILE HOP

By ROBERT G. ASPINALL
International News Service.

ABOARD SEAPLANE DO-X, Aug. 7.—Veering westward to skirt the jungle wilderness of Northeastern Brazil, the seaplane DO-X took off from Natal at 5:15 a. m. today (4:15 a. m. Pittsburgh time), for Para, a distance of 1,150 miles, continuing its flight from Rio de Janeiro to New York.

The DO-X flew yesterday from Bahia to Natal. When the equatorial scenery became too monotonous we turned to the pursuits of civilization. Typewriters of correspondents aboard clicked off descriptions of the flight and some of us sipped Steward Krause's cocktails.

Then some one turned on the phonograph and the two women on board, Mrs. Clara Adams and Mrs. Doris von Clausbruck, did not lack for partners when we called for the maxixe, famed South American dance.

Herr Maurice Dornier, brother of the designer of the DO-X, told us his plans for a plane twice as large as this one.

Blistering Week-End Predicted for City

Prospects of a blistering week-end came today when the thermometers of the United States Weather Bureau scored to 92 degrees. In the streets, 25 floors below, it was 100 degrees and higher.

Indications were for still higher figures late in the afternoon.

The government forecast for tomorrow was: Fair, not much change in temperature.

Japan Holds World Fliers As Spies, Seizes Films

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Aug. 7.—Confident that they could prove to the Japanese police that they are not spies, Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn today began preparations for a non-stop flight across the Pacific to Seattle.

Japanese officials were debating yesterday whether planes should be sent to prevent the arrival of the American round-the-world fliers over Japanese territory when, without warning, their plane swooped down at Tachikawa airdrome, without having been reported from any Japanese point.

The Americans first landed at Haneda Airport, near Tokio, but immediately took off again for Tachikawa, having flagrantly violated numerous espionage laws, for they not only had no permit to land in Japan, but had flown over secret fortifications. They readily admitted taking photographs, which were being developed by police officials today.

The young men were detained at the airdrome for four hours after their arrival until released at the behest of American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes, who gave written assurance that the fliers would appear before the police for further questioning today.

Blind Heroes Relive Days Of War With Vets Here

Heroes, a romantic word that suggests big, brawny men of war, broad-shouldered huskies, their manly chests covered with medals.

The heroes that 80th Division veterans worship, two of whom are here for the twelfth annual reunion, are those who, although sightless, "see" everything.

They are Frank Schoble, of Philadelphia, and Howard Z. Wells, of Petersburg, Va. Both have had honors bestowed upon them by their comrades. Both have served faithfully as national commanders.

Schoble, slight in stature, makes up for any physical deficiency by his acute knowledge of persons, places and [illegible]. Wells, tall and slightly stooped, once was a powerful man. Both served as lieutenants and lost their sight as the result of wounds received at the front.

The Roman house and that of Vezani, which was occupied by Saint Giuppo, 62, and Pete Marchesi, 60, were destroyed with an estimated loss of $5,000.

Mrs. Vitori was injured as she [illegible] to investigate the barking of a police dog, a family pet. As she crossed the yard the explosion occurred and she was hurled to the ground. She was found a short time later by her son Anthony. Her head was badly cut, probably by a falling timber.

SIX ESCAPE

The Vitori house was undamaged and its occupants, Postmaster Vitori, Joseph Vitori, 20, David Vitori, 16, his wife, Millie, and their two children, Frank, 4, and William, 1, were uninjured although tossed from their beds.

Mrs. Vitori

Postmaster Vitori was a member of a committee which protested to Elizabeth Township commissioners the appointment of D. L. Dalton, a former Pittsburgh coal and iron police, as deputy sheriff to guard the Pittsburgh Coal Company mine there. The appointment was revoked recently.

An investigation has been started by state police stationed at Sutersville.

U. S. CHAMBER, LABOR MAP JOB RELIEF

Study Undertaken in Fear Of Unemployment Rise; Leaders Talk With Hoover

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Fearful of an increase in unemployment next winter, the United States Chamber of Commerce has undertaken a study of the prospects with a view of presenting to President Hoover by September 1 a comprehensive plan to relieve the situation.

Silas Strawn, president of the chamber, and Julius Barnes, chairman of the board, yesterday discussed the employment problem with President Hoover for nearly an hour. Later Strawn said a preliminary survey forecast there would be more unemployment in the coming months.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Means to meet the unemployment situation the coming winter and to prevent its recurrence in the future were discussed today by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

William Green, president of the federation, said the council is in favor of an aggressive plan to restore production and thereby give to labor employment and wages which will make consumption possible.

KILLER BURKE'S PAL CAPTURED

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Gus Winkler, pal of Fred Burke, notorious killer and member of a gang accused of many killings, bank robberies and kidnapings in Mid-Western states, was a prisoner in a hospital today, badly injured. Officers from various cities were already here or en route in an effort to identify him with various crimes.

Winkler came to grief in the same community in which Burke was sentenced. His car overturned on a highway near here. Winkler's skull was fractured and a companion, identified by a card in his pockets as John B. Moran, suspected of an airplane theft in St. Louis, suffered a broken jaw. Efforts to link Moran, who gave the name of John Clyatt of Mobile, Ala., with the Burke-Winkler gang were being made. He is also under guard at the hospital.

Including among the crimes of which Winkler and his associates are accused are the machine-gun killings of seven George "Bugs" Moran gangsters in Chicago in 1929.

Roosevelt Offers Resort Trip to Crippled Trooper

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP)—New York's Governor, who cannot walk alone, yesterday visited a private of the state troopers confined to a wheel chair because his legs are paralyzed.

A year ago Leo Casey, slim young trooper, rode ahead of Gov. Roosevelt's car during the executive's Northern New York inspection trip. Last fall he was thrown from his motorcycle and injured.

When Gov. Roosevelt heard Casey was in the Mercy Hospital here, he stopped. The pale, thin youth rolled down the walk to the Governor's car. The Governor said:

"That's hard luck, Casey."

"Oh, those things happen, Governor."

"Yes, it happened to me 10 years ago."

To Casey's surgeon, Dr. Harlow G. Farmer, Roosevelt proposed, and the surgeon agreed, that Casey should try the curative baths at Warm Springs, Ga., which the Governor takes each year to aid him in his fight against the after-affects of infantile paralysis. The chances are Casey will go south with the Governor in September.

U. S. Sets Up Liquor Traps, Jim Reed Charges

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The federal government has been charged by former Senator Reed of Missouri with setting up speakeasies to entrap policemen and violators and thereby itself becoming a bootlegger.

These charges were in an article by Reed in the September issue of the Hearst International-Cosmopolitan Magazine. They were met today by a statement from Howard T. Jones, acting prohibition director, that the prohibition bureau had abolished such practices.

The Missourian also charged the government with instructing federal dry agents to co-operate with state officials in making [illegible] that would be [illegible] of the federal law and with [illegible] $20,000,000 [illegible] grape growers and grape concentrate manufacturers.

FIRE RELIEF FUND PUSHED AS DEATH TOLL GROWS TO 48

BISHOP TO MAKE RADIO APPEAL ON MONDAY

Time of Shows to Benefit Aged Changed to Sunday Midnight by Blue Law Ban

While the work of raising funds for the Little Sisters of the Poor, whose home for the aged was destroyed by fire, progressed today, the death toll had mounted to 48, another of the victims dying last night in the West Penn Hospital. James McNeelis, 70, was the latest victim of the fire which swept the institution July 24.

An appeal for funds will be made by the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh Catholic diocese, in a radio address from Station KDKA Monday night at 6:10 p. m. and on WCAE Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The address will be brief and will detail the immediate need for help for the inmates, who are now being cared for in several institutions.

The benefit shows which were scheduled for Sunday evening in Loew's Penn and the Stanley theaters have been changed to Sunday midnight so as not to violate the antiquated Blue Laws. The change was made by the relief committee and the theater managers following a request from Director James M. Clark of the Public Safety Department.

Director Clark had received complaints concerning the Sunday performances, even though they were charity. He advised the theater managers that he was compelled to restrain them from holding the benefits in violation of the Blue Laws. He suggested midnight performances. Persons holding tickets who cannot attend the midnight shows may have their money refunded, the committee announced.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Indian troupers of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which cut short here its summer tour, appealed yesterday to Vice President Curtis for aid.

Led by Chief Eagle Eye, the group marched to the office of the Vice President, in whose veins runs the blood of Kaw Indians, and presented their case.

Curtis bought a ticket to the benefit performance of the show sponsored last night by the American Legion and appealed to the Indian Bureau with a view of providing transportation home for the performers.

Charles J. Rhoads, Indian commissioner, said the bureau would aid in every way possible, but pointed out that its funds are available only for Indians who are wards of the government.

FAKE MASONIC FEE COLLECTOR JAILED YEAR

Harrisburg Man Serving Term in W. Va. Pen; Order Is Outlawed Here

Pittsburgh Masonic leaders today received word that George C. Phillips, of Harrisburg, and one time grand master of the grand lodge of the so-called Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of Pennsylvania, is now serving a year's sentence in the West Virginia Penitentiary at Moundsville following his plea of guilty to a charge of obtaining fees for Masonic degrees under false pretense.

Phillips' alleged accomplices have pleaded [illegible] and will be called for trial in the Tucker County [illegible] Court in [illegible].

Phillips, while operating in Pennsylvania, sought to compel the Secretary of the Commonwealth to register and recognize the name, emblems and symbols of his organization.

He lost his action upon the ground the courts held that only the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons and kindred bodies were entitled to be registered under the act of 1929.

The Free and Accepted Masons and organizations allied with it have an action in equity pending in the Dauphin County courts to compel the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons to cease using the lodge pins, emblems, etc.

It probably will come to trial in September.

Lloyd George's Daughter Rules Welsh Bards

BANGOR, North Wales, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Megan Lloyd George, daughter of Great Britain's war time prime minister, substituted last night for her father in presiding over the National Eisteddfod and made a record for being the first woman ever to occupy the presidents' chair.

She read messages from her father in London in which the famous political leader, now recovering from an operation, was reported so well that a complete restoration of his health was indicated.

The only part of his speech that could be present at the Eisteddfod Lloyd George wrote was his heart and that was with all his fellow countrymen.

His daughter made an appeal for the preservation of the Welsh language. She said:

"We've lost our independence but we still can preserve our national entity. If we lose our language it will be the beginning of the end."

"The whole trouble with the coal situation is cut-throat competition and the sooner they stop that and put their own house in order the better off they will be."

Operators Discuss U. S. Control

The following statements were made by outstanding figures in all branches of the industry regarding the benefits of government control of coal.

SAMUEL PURSGLOVE, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation—I have argued for 10 years that the coal industry should be regulated by a government commission similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to the railroads. I have discussed the proposition before the National Coal Association.

It has met with the same treatment the proposal for a commission to regulate the railroads first received. Many opposed it. The railroads [illegible] they [illegible] without government regulation.

We cannot hope for repeal of the anti-trust laws to permit us to fix prices. [illegible] a government commission could do all this. No doubt, if such a commission were established, mergers would take place, and the smaller companies absorbed [illegible] beneficial effect to the [illegible]. But first of all we [illegible] government regulation; other details would follow.

HOWARD W. SHOWALTER, president, and L. H. KELLY, vice president of the Continental Coal Company—[illegible] the Continental Coal Company has not had sufficient time to [illegible] consider the proposal [illegible] to it in order to [illegible].

MURRAY SEES NEED

PHILIP MURRAY, vice president, United Mine Workers of America—The coal industry needs a system of federal control that would [illegible] production, stabilize prices, guarantee a greater spread of employment, a greater continuity of operating time, higher wages and better working conditions.

The United Mine Workers suggested such a plan of federal regulation to the last session of Congress and to several sessions of Congress prior to the last one, but received no support from the coal operators as a whole.

We hope that the coal operators have at last seen the light and like our organization will recognize the need of federal control with these objectives in mind being put into effect.

B. F. HOFFACKER, consulting mining engineer—Any scheme that would raise prices for coal, better working conditions for miners and raise their wages and at the same time benefit operators, help them approach an even break in operating costs would be approaching a millenium. Conditions in the coal fields, both from an operating standpoint and among workers are deplorable. Any plan which would remedy this situation for both sides would be wonderful.

JOHN H. JONES, president, Bertha Consumers Company—I wouldn't care to discuss the proposal until giving it more thought. I may discuss it after returning to the city Monday.

C. H. JENKINS, vice president and manager, Hutchison Coal Company, Fairmont, W. Va., and official of National Coal Association—The operators of this district will take this proposal up at a meeting Monday. Until then I would prefer not to discuss it.

F. R. WEISE, president, South Fayette Coal Company—Anything would certainly be an improvement over present conditions. Federal control I think is the only remedy for our present [illegible].

C. H. MUSE, president, Bulger Block Coal Company—We are not in favor of schemes that will restrict competition or which will have the effect of restricting bargaining and the free operation of the economic law of supply and demand.

GEORGE H. THEISS, President of the Duquesne Coal and Coke Company—The coal industry has no right to expect its present deplorable predicament to be solved by government ownership or by government purchase of high cost mines.

What the coal business needs, owners and miners alike, particularly here in Western Pennsylvania, is a real diagnosis of what ails it.

Everyone knows that overproduction has resulted in ruinous competition for outlets causing constantly recurring losses for the owners and less than living wages for the miners. But it is not understood or realized that this situation is in its final analysis a political problem.

ADVANTAGES LOST

The Pittsburgh district has a natural strategic position near the Great Lakes that ought to afford a profitable market for its output. That natural advantage, however, has been lost through freight rates established by the Interstate Commerce Commission which enables Southern coal mined at great distance from the lakes, to be laid down there almost as cheaply as coal from this district.

Enormous investments have been made in the Southern coal fields in partial reliance at least upon these rates. This situation has destroyed the strategic advantage of Western Pennsylvania fields whose prime deposits of coal should have been mined almost to exhaustion before the Southern fields were fully opened to production.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has repeatedly refused to readjust rates to give this locality the advantage its proximity to the lakes would seem to warrant.

FATAL TO BOTH

It is certainly time for operators in the Pittsburgh district to realize that the lake coal rate has a political background and that it will not be changed. It is just as essential for the southern operator to realize that the Pittsburgh district is as determined as they are to stay in business, and that if one perishes the other will also, like a pair of fighting bull moose locked in a fast embrace.

The remedy for the coal industry, like its essential difficulty, lies in the political realm; that is to obtain an amendment to the Sherman anti-trust act that will permit such mergers as are necessary to assure the proration of the supply of coal to the demand and to submit to such regulation as will assure a fair price to the public. Meanwhile, pending a change in the law, mergers and consolidations not contrary to the existing law should be effected wherever practical.

BOXTOWN IDLE REBUILD HOMES

Boxtown has risen from its ashes and today its score of citizens were making preparations for a long, hard winter. Burned to the ground last spring because of numerous objections to its sanitary conditions, Boxtown has been rebuilt to shelter unemployed during the coming winter.

Built on the hills off Banksville road behind West End, the new Boxtown is well hidden. Its shanties are scattered in groups of two and three over the entire hillside.

The more ambitious of the men have constructed their huts of sheet iron and filled in the cracks with glass that serve as windows. Stoves and fireplaces have been built and here the optimistic hope to cook whatever food they salvage.

The entire colony was busy today collecting odds and ends of building materials to fortify their cabins. Most of the men have been out of work for a long time and are content to take anything as protection against the winter.

An old Negro, Bill Hawkins, one of the pioneers of the settlement, said he didn't care whether he worked or not. He said:

"You see, I haven't worked since 1922, and I have such a good cabin this year that I don't guess I'll look for a job."

Brooks and two companions, MacGregor said, have been endeavoring by bribing employes at Waynesboro to learn the secret process of manufacturing a rayon yarn made at the Waynesboro plant.

MAYOR GREETS TEST TOUR CAR

Mayor Charles H. Kline yesterday welcomed at the City-County Building W. W. Hargis of Detroit, who is driving a Dodge Standard 8 sedan on a nation-wide performance tour. The Mayor extended the freedom of the city to Hargis and aides from the American Automobile Association who are checking on the performance of the machine.

The party came here from Ohio and today were to visit Washington, Pa., and points in West Virginia.

The purpose of the tour, Hargis said, is to run the Dodge sedan until it is entirely worn out and to determine what it costs to operate an automobile at different stages of its existence.

While here Hargis was the guest of the Frank D. Saupp Company, Pittsburgh Dodge distributors.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

This Town Is Full of Boobs

GREAT LITTLE town, this New York. There are so many wise people here—so many people who think they know everything that's to be known. Let the average citizen meet an actress and he immediately knows all about Broadway. Let him see a horse race and he knows he can beat the bookies. Let him visit a night club and there's no one who can tell him anything about night life from then on.

As a matter of actual fact, the city is full of saps. Clerks play the stock market and reporters buy tickets in Mexican lotteries. Steel magnates take out chorus girls and doctors bet on prize fights. Lawyers trust their bootleggers and actors buy lots in Florida. It is my humble opinion that this town contains more suckers than the rest of the country put together. And it's all because we think we're so wise.

Some weeks ago I [illegible]

[illegible]

"Could you make the price of a cup of coffee," he asked.

[illegible]

The beggar raised his hand and hailed a waiter.

"That's all right, friend," he [illegible]

He turned about and [illegible] I called him back.

[illegible]

And he walked away.

I paid the driver and stood on the curb for a moment. I felt that I was wise enough to know many rackets, but this was a new one on me. The man was unquestionably well educated and far removed from the ordinary type of beggar. Scenting a story, I chased after him.

"Pardon, pal," I said as I caught up with him. "I didn't [illegible] suppose you drop in and have a cup of coffee with me [illegible] have a talk with you."

He looked at me.

[illegible]

And so [illegible] together in the [illegible] and [illegible] finish his cup of coffee.

"I won't go into details," he said, "because I don't care very much to talk about my unfortunate position. Why I talk to you at all I have no idea. However—

"Two years ago I lived in a small town in Connecticut. I had an excellent position with a large [illegible] company and was blessed with a devoted wife and a 14-year-old daughter. And just when life seemed sweet and happiest, the smash came. My wife was fatally hurt in an automobile smash.

"They brought her into the house and placed her on the sofa. She made me promise that I would be both mother and father to our daughter. I promised. And she died.

"I guess I wasn't man enough to keep that promise in the beginning. The whole thing hit me so hard that I began to drink more than was good for me. And it wasn't long before I lost my job and my daughter, too.

"I came home one day to find a note on the parlor table. It was from Martha—that's my daughter. She said she was tired of staying there and was going to Broadway to go on the stage. And that was all.

"That note brought me to my senses when it was too late. I suddenly remembered my promise to my dead wife and realized what I had done. I made up my mind to find Martha and bring her back with me. That was 16 months ago.

"I'm still looking. Each day finds me hanging around the theaters and the dramatic agencies. I want Martha. I want Martha. I want her very, very much—and I can't find her."

He stopped. And looked at me.

"You don't know her by any chance, do you? Her name is Martha Maxton, and she is short and has blonde hair. You don't know her, do you?"

A gleam of hope shone from his eyes. I shook my head. And the gleam died.

"Well, that's all. You know the whole story now. I haven't touched a drink since I started my search. And I never will again. I haven't any money, but I will continue to get along somehow. If I do not find her, I can at least tell my wife in Heaven that I died searching for our Martha."

He stood up from the table and placed his little cap on his head. I placed my hand in my pocket and drew forth a bill.

"Here," I said, "please take this with you."

His hand closed over the money. He looked at me, tears of gratitude welling in his eyes. And then, with a hasty "Thank you, sir," he ran out of the cabaret and disappeared into the night. . .

For some two hours following I remained in that cabaret. And then, at the early hour of 2:30 a. m., the proprietor invited me around the corner to a new speakeasy that catered to a theatrical crowd.

Arriving there, I was introduced by the proprietor of the cabaret to the boss of the speakeasy.

"Glad to know you," was the speakeasy man's greeting. "You must come around here some time and do a story on some of the unusual characters that hang around this joint."

"What type of character?" I asked.

"Oh," he replied, "all types. But there's one fellow in particular who ought to make good copy for you. He's a movie extra during the day, but he's got a gyp racket during the night that's the greatest thing I ever heard of."

"Yeah?" I asked pleasantly. "What is it?"

"Oh," replied the boss, "he hangs around the entrances of these gyp joints around here and watches till a sucker comes along. He strikes up a conversation by begging in an unusual fashion and then, when the prospect gets steamed, he tells a sob story about a dead wife in Connecticut and a daughter that went on Broadway.

"You must come around some time and watch him work. He never fails to make a sucker come across. You'll get many a laugh out of him."

* * *

Great little town — this New York. But there certainly are plenty of saps running around loose. . . .

AKRON EXPERTS PLAN OCEAN AIR LINERS

Huge Dirigible to Carry 100 Passengers; Prepare For Christening Tomorrow

AKRON, O., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The huge dock where Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, will christen the Navy's new dirigible Akron Saturday, is expected in a few years to be the workshop for great trans-oceanic air liners.

In this dock, so gigantic that it has weather conditions independent of those outside, engineers putting together girders and fabric have created for themselves a new fund of knowledge of dirigible building.

This knowledge, accompanied by years of experience of veteran Zeppelin builders imported from Europe, will go into the new trans-oceanic air liners. According to Dr. Karl Arnstein, vice president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, who is in charge of the construction, the structural design of the Navy ship may be easily adapted to the liners.

100 PASSENGERS

Ships the size of the Akron will be capable of carrying 100 passengers. They will have a total deck area of 12,000 square feet, with each stateroom occupying about 70 square feet.

Promenade decks and corridors about five feet wide will have a total length of about 900 feet, while about 3,500 square feet will be for public compartments.

There will be lounges, a dining salon and smoking room, galleys and storage places for food. Builders promise passengers will not suffer from seasickness, noise or odors.

Because the ships are designed for passengers who desire more rapid ocean trips, the air liners are not intended for operation in competition with surface vessels.

As the ceremonies for the christening of the Akron begin Saturday, the great "orange peel" doors of the dock, each of which weighs 600 tons, will be swung open by electric motors to permit the crowds to enter.

HUGE CROWD EXPECTED

A crowd of about 100,000 is expected to mill through the dock to view the largest airship ever constructed.

As the ceremonies start, exhibition flights over the dock will be staged by 150 Army, Navy, Marine Corps and private airplanes.

Helium was being pumped into the gas cells inside the 6,500,000 cubic-foot bag. Great rings and cables moored the ship fast to the floor of the dock to resist the 221,000-pound lifting power of the gas.

Navy Tells Builders To Submit Designs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Prospective bidders on two new destroyers were authorized yesterday by the Navy to submit estimates on their own designs as well as on the design prepared at the department.

Officials of the bureau of construction and repair pointed out that this would permit the Navy to take full advantage of shipbuilding talent in different parts of the country among private interests.

Child Attacks, Routs Three Bank Bandits

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Police today sought the third member of a gang which held up the Mercantile State Bank, Broad and Morris streets, yesterday, during which Nola Pugliese, 13-year-old daughter of the cashier, proved herself the heroine. Entering the bank during the holdup, Nola, carrying two bottles of soda water, hurled them at the robbers. Her cries, together with her attack, caused the robbers to run out.

HOOVER BACKS OHIO ANTI-DRY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(Universal)— President Hoover today had pledged his active support to John Hollister, Republican anti-prohibitionist, who is seeking the seat in Congress from the old First District in Ohio made vacant by the death of Speaker Longworth.

It is the first time the President openly espoused a candidate who at the beginning of his campaign declared that if elected he would strenuously advocate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The President sent for Hollister to discuss the campaign and his chances of winning over his Democratic opponent, State Senator David [illegible]. The outcome was regarded as so much in doubt and the seat of such tremendous importance in gaining control of the House that the President decided that the wet issue should be submerged and everything possible should be done to help the Republican candidate.

Small Timer says the crowded room at the top is occupied by many dizzy persons.

Small Timer says there's one law the breaking of which is no crime, yet it never is broken, that being the law of averages.

Small Timer says that money doesn't merely talk to him but sings "Good-bye Forever."

Small Timer says the flapper may be dumb but she's as irresistible as a trick gadget in the hands of a demonstrator.

Texas Legislators Protest Aid to Reds

AUSTIN, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Texas House of Representatives in a resolution yesterday condemned American industrialists who sold modern machinery to Russia to aid in the five-year plan. Premonition

You would grow tired of watching me come home
With office talk and trite and worldly cares;
Life would go dull—hold little froth or foam—
So taken up we'd be with small affairs;
Money to count and stupid bills to meet,
And silent evenings in the stuffy town;
There would be little space for phrases sweet—
Small time to praise an ill-afforded gown.

What would our kisses mean a year from now?
Merely a cold and half-discarded rite;
We would look back and wonder at the vow
We took one mad and breathless summer night.

No— it is better far to say goodbye
Than see a lovely romance droop and die!
—Kid Kazanova.

The Squelch Swelegant

When Ina Claire [illegible] broke the other day several reporters revived anecdotes about her former critic husband and herself. This one was overlooked. Miss Claire was rehearsing for her play "Grounds for Divorce." Henry Miller was directing. Something annoyed [illegible] and [illegible] let loose a deafening barrage of cuss words.

"Here, here, here!" [illegible] Mr. Miller, "please remember, Miss Claire, that there are stage hands present!"

He's been around Broadway for seasons but we only heard of him last night. He is about [illegible] and made all his millions from gold mines. Money means nothing to him. He uses it to tip low boys and the [illegible] speakeasy waiters and checkroom attendants.

LOOK
around the corner
BEFORE YOU BUY
FURNITURE

You couldn't buy "gold bricks" in the boom year of 1929 and we haven't seen any in 1931. There is no question that a dollar goes farther now, but don't think you are getting something for nothing. Sound common sense warns that you get exactly what you pay for. It costs so much to produce a quality piece of furniture—and if you pay less—you get less.

So we say—look around the corner to the day when the price-mania furniture that is being offered today will be a misfortune of the depression era

We aren't offering any furniture boomerangs in this store's August Sale. None of our furniture is going to return because it didn't measure up. We guarantee that there are no unseasoned woods used in the furniture you buy here—that atmospheric changes will cause it to swell and warp. You won't find that our veneers peel or that cheap glues have dried out, and joints have loosened. Every piece of our furniture has the right number of coats of varnish to insure its lifetime beauty and finish.

Boggs & Buhl living room furniture has the best webb construction procurable, which means that after a few years the edges won't sag nor the cushions break down. Down filling here, in a piece of furniture, is not ground chicken feathers—it is down. And coverings are sewed on—not tacked.

Remember, it's the hidden parts of the construction of furniture that make it imperative for you to rely on the integrity of the store from which you buy. Boggs & Buhl furniture is up to a standard; not attempting to meet impossible price levels. We do know that our August sale offers an almost unparalleled opportunity to buy good, dependable furniture at big savings. We are doing everything possible by arranging easy credit terms to bring these opportunities within the reach of the entire community.

Examples of Dependable Low Priced Furniture

Two-Piece Living Room Suites as low as . $69.50
Living Room Davenports as low as . . . $49.50
4-Piece Bed Room Suites as low as . . . $89.50
10-Piece Dining Room Suites as low as $175.00

Prices range upwards from these figures and, so far as these extremely low priced examples go, we do not know of any store that offers quality to equal them at their price. It is impossible to go lower than these prices and guarantee the quality of the furniture.

Plans for the proposed addition to the clubhouse are not keeping College Club members at home this summer, although at least one of them is carrying with her on her holiday the thought of the new home. Mrs. Ralph E. Arrangements are being made for a corn roast to be given by the Grove City College Women's Club of Pittsburgh on September 12 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. Dayton Craig in Glenshaw. Rudy Vallee found himself [illegible] the other day and forgot to take a breath in this manner:

We who are often at the mercy of the critics would [illegible] an opportunity to wield the same tremendous power that they wield daily, whereas we might, when the occasion arises and this same power is put into our hands, [illegible] critics in general in a very destructive fashion, and this same attack would be made easy for us because the understanding usually is that the article that the guest columnist writes will not be edited or touched by either the newspaper or the columnist himself.

Maybe it comes over better through a megaphone.

Observations

Perhaps Rudy will find comfort in Ted Robinson's quip that most critics are so thorough they never leave a thing unstoned.

Oh, Fooofff!

Good gosh! Here it is almost the finish of the column again. That's the only part about getting to the last paragraph of a colm.

It is a warning to commence worrying about the first paragraph for tomorrow's!!!

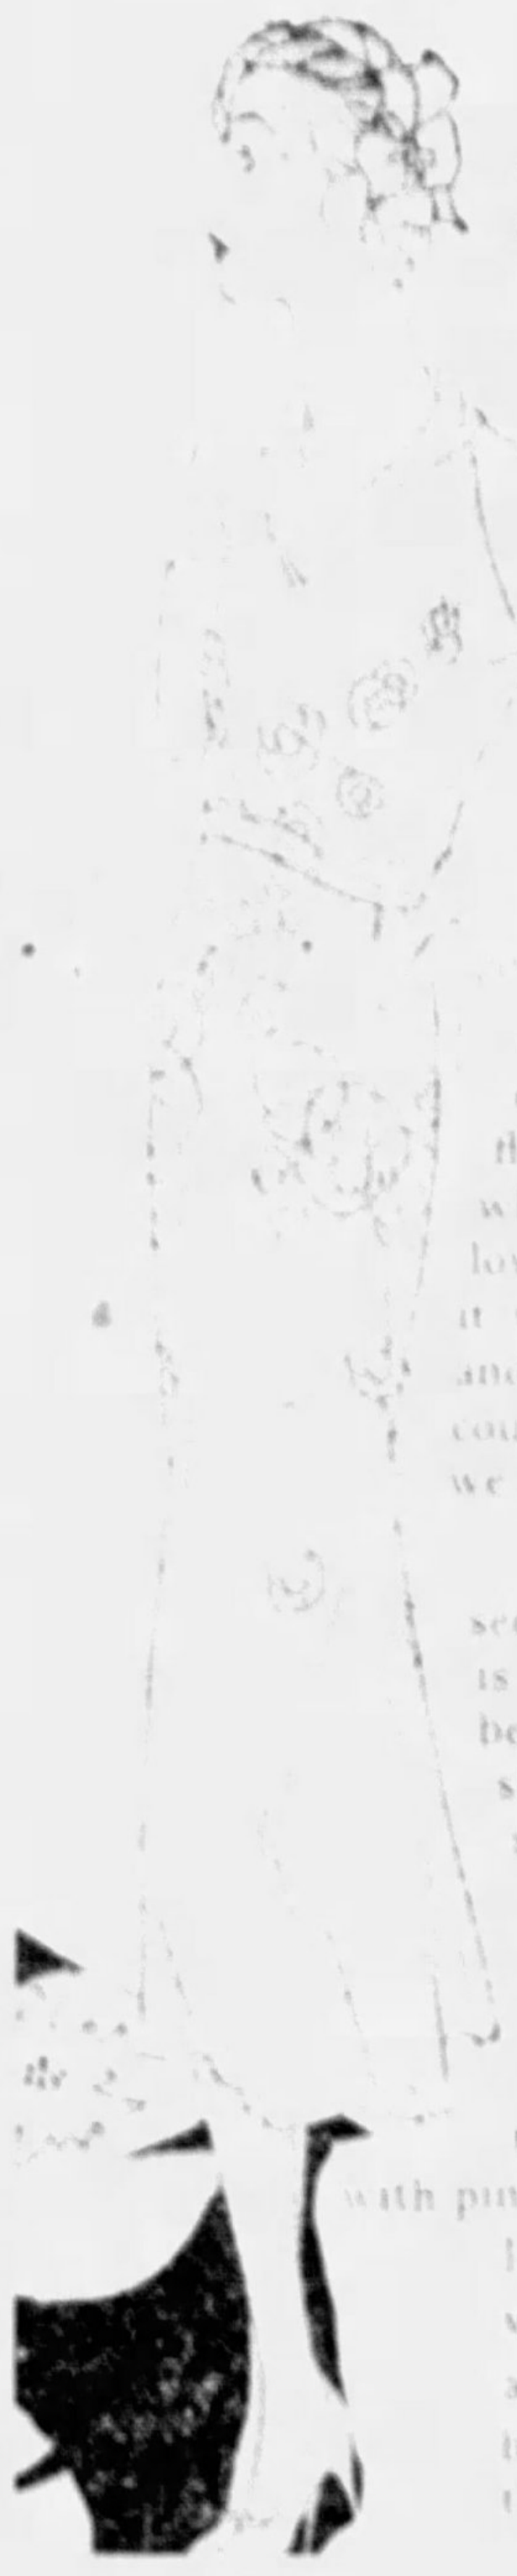
A Form of Criticism?

Far be it from us to proofread so usually flawless a directory as Donnelley's Red Book, but its Spring-Summer edition lists Cab Calloway as a sepia orchestra director, singer, extraordinary and all-around entertainer.

Cab Calloway is not, as Column 2, Page 819 of Donnelley's lists him, a taxicab!

DESIGNERS PRESENT NEWEST MODE IN EXQUISITE FROCKS

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Aug. 7.—That nothing succeeds like success is quite evident in the sartorial world. Although the well-dressed woman always seeks to be an individualist in her style of dressing, she will quite willingly wear a model that is being duplicated and worn by many others, providing that the model is a becoming and exquisite one. Of course, such a model is not often presented, but when it is, even the smartest woman can not resist its lure, and succumbs to its charms.

And so it happens that this season one sees in various versions and colors Vionnet's dainty pin tucked model in georgette. The pin tucking is done in a flower design and the frock is usually in white or a pastel shade. It certainly is a lovely model, so much so that one looks at it with admiration and it always looks new and fresh no matter how frequently it is encountered. And at the races and similar events we have met it several times in one day.

PRINTED CHIFFON is still sometimes seen, as witness the model from Ytch, which is done in a plaided design. Shades of orange, beige and brown on a creamy ground are most skilfully blended. The cowl bodice has short sleeves edged with twin flounces and set in with raglan shoulders. There is a small sash of the material knotted at the side.

ATTACHED IS A SKETCH of the Vionnet model discussed in today's bulletin. It is in pale hyacinth blue georgette with pin tucking in a flower design. This particular version of Vionnet's success was seen last week at the Polo at Bagatelle. With it was worn a hat of matching hyacinth velvet ribbon, a Reboux model, that harmonized delightfully with the lovely frock.

M'KEES ROCKS TO NAME SLATE

The independent slate that is to enter the political battle in McKees Rocks at the primaries is expected to be announced tonight at a meeting of the Citizens' Committee of McKees Rocks in the committee headquarters.

Leaders of the committee were continuing their fight to force County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong to permit them to inspect the registration lists for the borough. Rumors in the borough are that many names have been added to the books and through an inspection of the records the committee hopes to prevent any "ghost" registration.

Rate War Feared If New Companies Get Permits; City Quits Fight on Issue

E. S. Higgins, vice president and general manager of the Yellow and Green taxicab companies, yesterday contradicted the claim of the Better Traffic Committee that there are too many taxicab stands in Pittsburgh, before Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker [illegible]

"Put the cabs where the prospective customer can get them. A standing cab gets more business than a moving one. Opposition intensifies competition and starts rate wars. The kind of competition developed is like a dog fight. The bystanders enjoy it and the companies can't help it. I believe the American practice of taking taxicab stands off the street is wrong and sooner or later it will be so recognized."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 7.

To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Tough day for news. China had a flood. Mae Murray, film actress, decided to retain same husband. Ain't heard a word from Russia since Shaw left it. Even a Wickersham report would read good. Wheat went so low that even the grain speculators are being driven to a legitimate business. All that saved the day was Jack Dempsey announcing that he was going to fight again and rumors that Grace Coolidge had her hair bobbed. I'll bet Calvin will sneak off where the voters can't see him and get a manicure. I hope something unusual happens today. Maybe Lindbergh's radio will work.

STORE MURDER SUSPECTS HELD

Two discharged Negro employes of the Walgreen Drug Store, Sixth avenue and Wood street, where Harry Siegel, assistant manager, was shot and killed during a holdup early Tuesday, were arrested by city homicide detectives today at 50 Washington street.

They were held at Central Station for possible identification by Daniel Korn, friend of Siegel, who witnessed the shooting. The two were docketed as Walter H. Bailey, 22, of 1215 Wylie avenue, and Ernest Hutchinson, 35, of 504 Junilla street.

Lieut. Frank Fetterwald a Negro had been found hiding in the basement of the Walgreen store the afternoon preceding the murder and had been ousted by employes.

A revolver recovered at a pawn shop the afternoon following the slaying, Fetterwald said, was of the same caliber used in the shooting and will be checked with the bullet recovered from Siegal's body.

Mabel Has Seen Our Dry Law From All Angles

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Got to hand Mabel Willebrandt credit for trying.

She has been on both sides of the Eighteenth Amendment, photographed it from the air and has also enjoyed a worm's-eye view of it.

Mabel is now in the grape concentrates racket. Like the snake that swallowed the porcupine, Mabel is working both ends against the middle.

Other grape concentrates come in brick form. You can either drink 'em or throw 'em.

The government raided the stylish Fifth avenue shop where grape concentrates are shown in all sizes from stylish stouts to bashful bachelors.

But it seems that the government has grabbed the bull's horns where they are hottest. First it gives financial backing to the grape industries of California, and the grape growers repay kindness by making the government an accessory before the fact.

First Mabel swore to obey, honor and uphold the Eighteenth Amendment, and then got a divorce.

Manufacturers claim grape concentrate bricks are indorsed by the Scriptures. We forget whether it was Pharaoh or Aimee McPherson who ordered 'em to be made without straw.

DAVIS ASSAILS PENAL SYSTEM FOR YOUNG

Senator in Radio Talk Here Voices Resolve to Bring Better Juvenile Methods

A bill to provide for federal and state co-operation in substituting constructive guidance and training methods to replace the system now used for children held in prisons as federal offenders, is to be sponsored by United States Senator James J. Davis, he declared in a radio address last night over WJAS. He said:

"Juvenile federal prisoners are treated in a manner harking back to the dark ages, entirely out of place and abhorrent to twentieth century civilized Americans. Youthful prisoners are subject to floggings, solitary confinement in dark, unhealthy dungeons, and restriction of diet to a degree which menaces health and sometimes life."

Senator Davis said the President's Law Enforcement Commission in its recent investigation uncovered facts that are startling and deserve the consideration of everyone interested in justice and fair play. With respect to juvenile offenders, he declared, the federal government has been guilty of barbarously inhuman treatment. He continued:

"The penal system in vogue for these youths, many of them simply thoughtless young people who have made a misstep and should be given the opportunity to remove the stain from their record, is one that is disastrous in its results.

"It is my sincere hope that at the next session of Congress I can assist in laying this matter before that body so that remedial legislation may be enacted."

MAITS CHECKS LOW GARBAGE SERVICE BID

Contract Decision Awaits End of Director's Survey Of Company's Equipment

Award of the 1932 garbage and rubbish removal contracts was still undecided today. Nearly a month ago bids from three organizations were opened by Health Director Charles B. Maits.

All day yesterday was spent, Dr. Maits said, checking over the equipment of the Modern Service Company, the low bidder. Dr. Maits said:

"I am going over all the Modern Service Company's specifications in minutest detail. I have studied the types of trucks the new company proposes to use and now am making a survey of their incinerator plans. It will probably be several days before this is completed."

The company's bid was nearly $1,000,000 less than that of the American Reduction Company for three years. The American and its subsidiary, the Allegheny Garbage Company, now hold the city garbage and rubbish collection contracts.

A public hearing on personnel and equipment of the Modern company was held by City Council at the instigation of Francis Guthrie, a taxpayer, and Attorney Earl Reed. Reed sought to prove that city officials were interested in the new organization and that the company would not be able to prepare operations by next January 1.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard, counsel and treasurer of the low-bidding organization, told Council his firm proposed to use covered trucks in hauling away refuse. He said odorless and smokeless incinerators would be placed at advantageous points throughout the city if Council changed zoning ordinances to permit their erection. If this was not done, he said, the incinerators would be built outside the city.

GIVE TO Charity BEFORE YOU GIVE UP THE GHOST!

NINE TENTHS of the history of generous impulses can be summed up in the single word POSTPONED—think, for example, how many millions for charity are locked up in the Wills of the living waiting for the testators to die . . . and think how much more charitable it would be if some of those frozen funds were working now to alleviate human suffering and distress . . . how much greater is the charity that gives before dying instead of dying before giving!—why not do a little more while you're here and leave a little less when you go?

The DE PAUL INSTITUTE would like to be remembered in your Will but that does not help the DE PAUL INSTITUTE right now—it cannot take care of today's burdens with tomorrow's bequests—its needs are imperative and immediate—it must raise $40,000.00 a year to carry on its Christ-like activity of making the deaf to hear and the mute to speak . . . and it asks you in your charity to draw a check in behalf of the great charitable work that every hour draws upon it for support.

Bishop Boyle has ordered a collection for this great undertaking in every Catholic Church on Sunday, August 9th, the day on which the Gospel relates the miracle of Christ healing the deaf mute. A dollar from everyone in the Diocese of Pittsburgh would carry on this noble charity. If you can both hear and speak, may we count upon your contribution of at least a dollar next Sunday?

. . . Kellogg's Corn Flakes have a special package different from all others!

. . . A waxtite inside bag perfected and patented for all Kellogg's Cereals.

. . . This inside bag is sealed against odors and contamination.

. . . It brings Kellogg's Corn Flakes oven-fresh and flavor-perfect to your table.

Other foods are wax-wrapped — some inside, others outside. But only Kellogg's have an inside bag that is actually sealed at the bottom as well as the top.

Just another reason why it pays to specify Kellogg's when buying corn flakes. One of the most economical and convenient foods.

Delicious with milk or cream for breakfast; for lunch with fruits or honey; fine for children's suppers or a late snack.

Easy to digest. Always ready to serve. No trouble. No work. With a "wonder" flavor that can't be equaled.

Look for the red-and-green package at your grocer's. It means genuine Kellogg's — the original Corn Flakes. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. ...

In their frenzied search for—and occasionally finding of—novelty, the microphone moguls led Mrs. Mary I. Polando of Lynn, Mass., mother of John Polando of America-to-Turkey flight fame, to their studios, bade her greet her son in far-off Istanbul.

And, like mothers the world over, Mrs. Polando voiced her pride not only in his achievement but in the filial conduct.

"John," she said, "was always a kind and considerate boy."

NBC executives are enthusiastic over the broadcast, just as earlier they were enthusiastic over another "piece of microphone humor," offered ... quizzing by Senator Copeland of the seventh ... the first national intelligence test. Here was something that was fresh and spontaneous. Such broadcasts go a long way in compensating for the cut-and-dried talks that clutter the air channels.

Broadcasters, seeking to enlighten Europe about modern American music, invariably put in a call for George Gershwin. Quite appropriately, it seems to us. No one else so typifies in his music the gusto and madness of present American civilization. Gershwin, in his later years, is becoming more highbrow, but even in this attitude he again is reflecting the republic, in its aim to elevate itself culturally.

Jazz is the thing we do best, do so well, in fact, as to make the efforts of Europeans seem like so much musical roquefort. It's time we were sending it abroad.

Of the two branches of the service the Navy is much the more alert to the publicity value of radio. Thousands of words have been aired concerning the new Navy dirigible Akron. Thousands more are to come. Every fact and figure about the new airship has been made available to the ears of the nation. And a snap of the fingers to foreign powers greedily hunting secrets!

Announcers, officials of the Navy, manufacturers of the dirigible themselves, with portable transmitters strapped to their backs, have peered into every corner of the ship, have poked into every cadet, have told of their observations. We know, or should, all about the Akron.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY. IGNATIUS TIMOTHY TREBITSCH LINCOLN—Ignatius Timotheus Trebitsch Lincoln was born in Paks, Hungary, the son of Jewish parents who intended him for a rabbinical career. After he was graduated from the rabbinical school, Trebitsch suddenly decided to enter the Catholic Seminary of Budapest to study for the priesthood. A few years later we find him as a Presbyterian minister in Canada, which position he presently exchanged for that of Episcopalian rector in England. In due course Lincoln entered the field of politics and was elected a Liberal member of Parliament from Darlington. After a series of spectacular activities in the World War, he emerged as the counsellor of Ludendorff and Kapp in the days of the famous German "putsch." His field of activities then shifted to China, where he became a Buddhist priest. Today Lincoln is a full-fledged lama in Tibet. THE LOCOMOTIVE PULLED BY THREE WOMEN—This giant freight locomotive, weighing 711,500 pounds, was built for the Timken Roller Bearing Company and was equipped with special bearings for experimental work to create a freight engine with passenger engine speed. While the locomotive was being exhibited in the Union Station at Chicago on August 7, 1930, three girls from the Pennsylvania Railroad offices succeeded in pulling it from a standstill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Well folks we are on the brink of another Western trip and Uncle Nick's address for the next three weeks will be in care of an upper berth. STOCK MARKET HOLDS GROUND, SALES FALL

Heaviness of Rails Drag List Down Again After Rally Early in Morning

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP).—Heaviness of the railroad issues persisted in today's security markets, although the share market as a whole held its ground in listless trading.

Recovery of the German government issues was a feature of the bond market. The international outlook, however, was still somewhat clouded by continued pressure against the British pound sterling, although further gold losses by the Bank of England were negligible.

The stock market moved upward for a time in the morning and rallied a little during the first half hour, but was dragged down by the rail issues later. Trading slackened close to a standstill after midday. In the rails Atchison lost four points. A few of the [illegible] sagged a point or so. Changes in most of the [illegible] industrials were limited to small fractions.

While new developments in the railroad situation were lacking, publication of a tabulation of results of the first half of the year by the Bureau of Railway Statistics again attracted attention to the low state of carrier revenues.

The weekly brokerage loan statement, showing a reduction of $11,000,000 in loans in a week of extremely light trading and little change in values, was surprising. This reducing the volume of loans to $1,146,000,000 apparently is the lowest since January, 1924, although strictly comparable figures are not available. The extent of this deflation is the more remarkable when [illegible] fact that aggregate market values are [illegible] far above those of 1924 [illegible] of the vast increase in listed securities.

Call money was available at 1 per cent in the outside market, although the official rate of 1½ per cent was maintained. The United States Treasury's offering of $60,000,000 was sold at a price equivalent to an interest rate of 56-100 of 1 per cent, a further testimony to the vast surplus of unemployed funds in this market. This is indeed a contrast with Berlin, where the discount rate is still 15 per cent, although an early reduction is now expected in view of the successful resumption of banking activity.

Valley Steel Trade Expects Increase

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 7.—Mahoning Valley steel plant operations at mid-week were holding at 31 per cent of capacity based on raw steel output, unchanged from the rate going into effect shortly after production for this week was started.

The steel ingot activity was at 31.81 per cent of capacity, the lowest since September, 1921, and compares with 37.38 per cent in June and 58.14 per cent in July, 1930.

July output was 1,976,140 tons against 2,07[illegible],910 tons in June and 2,977,220 in July, 1930. Seven months output totaled 17,114,668 tons as compared to 26,300,8[illegible] tons a year ago, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Socony-Vacuum Pays 40-Cent Dividend

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Socony-Vacuum Corporation directors today declared an initial dividend of 40 cents a share, payable September 15 to stockholders of record August 21.

This is the same as the previous quarterly rate paid by Standard Oil Company of New York, which merged with Vacuum Oil Company to form the new billion dollar Socony-Vacuum Corporation. In the exchange, Vacuum stockholders received 2½ shares in the new company for each share held, and there was a share-for-share exchange of Standard of New York stock.

Chicago Pig Iron Market Picks Up

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Leading merchant pig iron sellers in the Chicago district report increased buying of pig iron with sales last week ahead of the preceding week. The current week's sales probably will surpass those of last week. Three of six merchant stacks are active in the district.

Foundry iron No. 2 grade is unchanged at $17.50 a ton.

Compared with the production of June, 1930, when the output totaled 23,904,402 pairs, the 1931 month's total was an increase of 17.7 per cent, the Commerce Department reports.

Peseta Drop Hurts Spain's Commerce

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The decline of about 6 per cent in the peseta in the last 24 hours has seriously retarded Spain's external commerce. Exporting houses who want sterling exchange have been unable to obtain it except with delays of as much as 10 days.

A. T. T. Official Allays Fears on Dividend Payment

Rallying tendencies shown by the principal industrial stocks in the early dealings were checked toward 11 o'clock by a general selling movement in the rails. Carriers shares used in the Dow-Jones averages closed yesterday at 71.58, a new low on the decline from the high reached on the Hoover moratorium rally in June. With rail stocks in new low ground on the movement the feeling was increased that they were headed for a test of their ability to hold above the bear market low of 66.85 established June 2. This prospect was strenghtened by additional recessions in the principal transportation shares with extended their recent declines under active offerings.

Statistical data on railway operating results as compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics shows that the pace of decline in railway earnings was slackened perceptibly in June. For that month net operating income of Class 1 carriers showed a drop of 22.5 per cent, substantial in itself but still sharply less than the indicated decrease of 36.8 per cent shown for the full six months. The better relative showing for June is accounted for perhaps by the fact that June, 1930, was a month in which operations also were decidedly slack. Net operating income of $238,550,110 reported by all roads for the first six months was at the rate of 2.15 per cent on capital investment as against $377,779,211 or the equivalent of 3.46 per cent in the first half of 1930.

This week's drop of $44,000,000 in the total of brokers' loans to $1,346,000,000, the lowest since the beginning of 1924, constitutes the fifteenth decrease reported in the last 16 weeks. With the exception of the week ended July 1 last brokers' borrowings have been dropping steadily downward each week since April 15 when the total was $1,849,000,000. The present total of borrowings shows a drop of $567,000,000, or roughly 30 per cent from the year's peak of $1,913,000,000 recorded on March 18. This record should serve to emphasize the fact that while liquidation is not of unduly heavy proportions, such selling has been contributing a share of pressure which has been forcing stocks slowly but steadily downward.

The semi-annual statement of the Radio Corporation was the subject of much conjecture in speculative circles. Though showing substantial improvement in actual results over the first half of 1930 it was hardly to be accepted as providing basis for any early renewal of $2,093,802 from first-half operations last year. Both operating and other income were substantially smaller this year than last, but a drastic cut in sales costs and expenses permitted the showing. The sharp drop in the above mentioned items at least conveyed the impression that the company very likely was making fairly rapid disposition of inventory stocks while at the same time production has been at a minimum.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Heavy trading in Cities Service common stock, which broke to a new minimum, featured a dull session of the curb market today. Prices were slightly easy in most directions, but except in a few instances losses were nominal and the undertone appeared steady.

DIXON PLACES OIL BLAME

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Dixon of the Interior Department said the entire responsibility for continued demoralization of the oil industry upon Texas, its legislature, and "selfish and irresponsible interests operating the East Texas pool."

In reply to a flood of telegrams from governors, senators and other leaders for some federal action, Dixon issued a statement asserting the federal government's hands are tied; that it and all other great producing states have placed a curb on the oil output, but only Texas' failure to cooperate with the industry at large now prevents the price of oil from again reaching $1 a barrel.

The Texas Legislature now is in special session considering legislation to bring the East Texas field under some control.

JULY OIL WELL DRILLING OFF

I thought Viola was going to faint when the [illegible] man so roughly [illegible] that he was arresting me for murder.

Not to be flippant [illegible] to make Viola feel better, I said to the man: "You don't arrest a person for murder, you arrest them on suspicion [illegible]."

"You know a whole [illegible]," he said [illegible].

"Remember, wait until [illegible] lawyer comes, Kitty, and let him do the talking [illegible] the talking," Viola warned as we were leaving.

"I want to get a lawyer," I said.

"Certainly, but I want to ask a few questions. You were with Malvern last night and you can help us."

"I did not see Forrest Malvern last night, and that is all I shall say until I talk with my lawyer."

"Perhaps Miss Mason will surprise you [illegible] you to admit that you did see him."

Synopsis

Katherine Mason, who believes in playing around and having a good time, jilts Peter Thompson because he is poor, who expects to marry rich Thad Parsons, but Thad marries Arline Sargent instead. Katherine becomes fond of Forrest Malvern, an old friend of Dolly Hawkins, who has disappeared. Thad wants to divorce Arline. Arline offers Kitty a huge sum of money to testify falsely against Thad. At the trial, however, Kitty tells the truth and Thad is granted the divorce. He wants to marry Kitty but she rejects him. Kitty has good times with Forrest. He has a gift for her and she promises to leave a party and go to his apartment at midnight to see it. In the building, on her way to see Forrest, an old scrub woman warns Kitty to stay away from him. Kitty goes to the woman's poor quarters to hear her story and is amazed when she proves to be Dolly's mother. The woman says that Dolly ended her life in the river. Kitty does not visit Forrest. Believing that she did, Viola rebukes Kitty. The next day they learn that Forrest had been found shot to death in his apartment. Kitty is taken to police headquarters for questioning.

GETS THAD'S LAWYER

[illegible]

"This is a holiday, officer." [illegible]

He pushed the desk telephone over to me. I asked for a book and got it. The only lawyer I had in mind was Mr. Sanders, who had secured Thad Parsons' divorce for him. I had no difficulty in getting his home number, and at the same time I was sure that my questioner pressed a button under his desk. That would be a signal outside somewhere for someone to listen in to the talk, but it didn't worry me.

I told Mr. Sanders who I was and mentioned Thad's case.

"I'll say I remember you, Miss Mason," he said with a chuckle. "What can I do for you?"

"I'm at headquarters—police headquarters. They are trying to make me swear that I killed Forrest Malvern," I said.

"Did you?" he asked in a low voice.

"I did not."

"Then don't talk. I'll be down."

"I haven't talked except to deny everything, Mr. Sanders."

"Don't even deny; don't say a word. They can't force you to talk."

"All right; hurry down. They are listening in on this much of our talk anyway. Goodbye."

I hung up and smiled at the man, who seemed surprised.

"Wasn't I right? Didn't you give a signal for someone to listen in?" I asked him.

He wasn't smiling any more. He was trying to frighten me.

"Lawyers cost money and no lawyer can help you. If you come across I'll see that you get out of it," he said sharply.

"You will? You are the judge and the jury, I suppose. Come now, be nice. I'm not going to talk until I see my lawyer." I settled back in my chair as if determined to say no more.

"Do you know a night switchboard and elevator boy named Luke?"

LIES FOR HER

I wouldn't answer.

"Do you know a Jap boy named Kato?"

I turned and stared out of the window.

"How are you going to explain not getting in until after 2?"

I turned back and smiled at him, still silent.

"Now—"

He started to shout, but an officer came in and leaned over to whisper to him.

They talked for a moment and the questioner growled: "Bring him in."

Mr. Sanders couldn't get down so quickly as that. I wondered who it could be. I found out soon enough.

It was Peter Thompson!

"Hello, Kitty. I see the bulls made another of their famous pinches," he said, and smiled at me.

"You said it, Peter," I answered.

He turned to my questioner.

"This young lady was a guest at my home last night. What's the big idea of all this nonsense?" Peter demanded.

It was so nonsensical, so astonishing, that for the life of me I couldn't help laughing outright.

"Wave the flags," I said. "Peter Thompson to the rescue."

Peter looked at me reproachfully and frowned and shook his head.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Important Question

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Humble Garage Proprietor Inherits Millions

Wally Elton was mowing the lawn of his mother's pretty suburban home.

The greensward swept across to the Mrs. Younger property on the left.

Ethel Younger came out with a novel in her hand. She yawned and stared about. Wally watched her. He ceased pushing the lawn mower and devoted all of his energies and his time, for the moment, to watching her.

Ethel's pretty eyes took note of Wally. She tossed the novel on the veranda hammock and strolled across her lawn. There was no dividing fence, merely a few clusters of low shrubs and peonies.

"Lo, Wally," she greeted as she came across.

He gave her a happy grin, waved his hand and repeated her own greeting.

"Is the little boy buried deep in thoughts concerning the welfare of nations?" she asked pertly.

Ethel came just to his shoulder, for he was a six-footer.

"The little boy was thinking important thoughts about this great Amazon of a girl," he said, stooping, putting his fingers beneath her chin and lifting her face. Ethel started a smile when Wally interrupted it with a kiss.

"You goof! People will see you."

"And envy me."

"Silly!"

"Delirious."

"What do you mean, delirious?"

"The kiss. I think I shall help myself to another."

Ethel backed away a few steps.

"Stingy," said Wally.

"How dare you stand there thinking of me?"

"I'm on my own land and I may think of anyone—I prefer to think of you."

"I haven't a penny."

"For my thoughts?"

WOULDN'T BE CHEATED

She nodded. "It's just as well I would be cheated."

Wally let the mower handle drop and walked to the round seat under the triad of silver birches. He patted the seat. Ethel came over and sat about a foot away. His long arm stretched out and drew her up close to him.

"My thoughts would not cheat you if you paid a penny for them, and I believe I will trust you for the penny. I was thinking very seriously about you, sweetness."

"How's the headache?"

Wally stared at her.

"Headache? Who said anything about a headache, you irritating little doll baby?"

"Thinking seriously would certainly make your head ache," she said and grinned sourly.

"I have changed my mind." He scowled at her.

"Your what?"

"My mind. You beautiful [illegible] me my mind. I shall not trust you for the penny. I shall, however, tell you my thoughts. My thoughts about you are worth millions. I shall collect the first million in this manner."

He kissed her again.

"Don't be a sil[illegible]! If your mother sees you she'll send me home and put you to bed without your supper."

LAUGHS AT WALLY

"My mother is extremely fond of you and she is extremely wise. She knows that no young man could be blamed for wanting to kiss you, but I'm going to be the one to attend to all that. I was thinking that while we'll never be terribly ghostly wealthy, we'll be fairly well fixed."

"We? How do you mean that 'we' stuff?"

"You and I, you and me. I never can tell which is correct. I mean we'll be married and live comfortably in a financial way and live gloriously happy in—I mean, we'll always be happy."

"That's hot news, Wally."

"What's hot news?"

"That we are going to be married."

"It's news you knew it all along."

"It never occurred to me before, and what's more it is only an idle rumor created by you. Whatever put that idea in your head?"

"You."

"I never did! I never even suggested marriage."

"Yes, you did. You've been suggesting it for years. Every time I look at you, Ethel, I think of marriage with you."

"Ha-ha," said Ethel.

"Don't you 'Ha-ha' me or I'll—"

His arm reached for her again, but she dodged back too quickly for him.

"Now why should I marry you?"

"Because you just crave to marry me," he declared.

"Ha-ha," she answered, and before he could stop her she was running across the lawn to her home.

Wally got up and began pushing the lawn mower again. It was Saturday afternoon and the bank where for so young a man he held a responsible position was closed.

He pepped his step and made the mower hum as he began singing in a deep but somewhat atrocious baritone "Ninety-nine Out of a Hundred Want to be Kissed."

He was close to the Younger lawn then.

"Ha-ha," shouted Ethel.

"And so do you," he added. Then he called out: "I'll be over after dinner and attend to that little thing."

He did go over, but Ethel's two cousins, teachers in a state normal school, were there for the week-end, so Wally's amours consisted of snatching one quick kiss in the hall when he came and another when he departed. The remainder of the evening was devoted to bridge and claret lemonade.

Ethel's people had moved into the house adjoining the Elton home some five years before. Ethel had been away at school some of the time, but she and Wally had been friendly and then pals, and now it looked as though they would be sweethearts.

Wally was doing his best to bring this about.

Ethel tried to make herself believe that she was not ready to think of matrimony, but she was too clever and too honest a girl to kid herself into such a silly notion, as if any girl ever ceases to think of matrimony!

Wally took her for a drive around the lake a few evenings later.

INVITED TO TEA

He brought up the subject of matrimony as it affected themselves solely. He was quite serious about it.

Ethel told him that he was a darling boy, but that she wasn't ready to move as yet.

"Move?" he asked.

"Over into the state of matrimony; this is a good enough state for now."

Wally told her he wouldn't stand for any such nonsense, and avowed that he would soon come with a club, bang her on the head and drag her by her hair to his cave.

It was right after this that there was quite a sensation in town. Jerome Peebles, who owned the Four Corners garage and filling station, had suddenly fallen heir to money, great stacks of it. He promptly bought himself some luxurious and costly cars, went to live at the local hotel and proceeded to be the playboy of Essex County.

Ethel knew Jerry. He had always kept her car in condition, supplied gas and oil, and tipped his greasy cap to her. He had always refused her tips. This was because Jerry had long been secretly in love with her.

Jerry drove over after a week and called on Ethel.

"I—I come over to say that the man who bought my garage is all right, Miss Younger; he'll give you good service."

"Thanks, Jerry; come up and have some cake and tea with mother and me."

Jerry came up. Ethel's mother, being a dear inquisitive soul, asked him how it felt to be a man of leisure.

"Swell, elegant, Mrs. Younger. Gee, it keeps my lawyer busy answering letters from folks who read about my getting them millions."

"Letters?" Ethel asked.

"I'll say so, from all sorts. My lawyer told me not to bother with the beggin' letters, and I sure don't want none of them fool letters from women who want to marry me."

"Oh, do bring some over and let us have a laugh over them," Ethel's mother begged.

One evening they went to the Willow Inn for dinner and dancing. Ethel had been having a long and serious talk with her mother about Jerry and his millions.

"Gosh," Jerry said, "I never thought I'd be riding with you in my own swell car, Miss Younger."

"Don't be so formal, Jerry; call me Ethel."

"You bet I will, Ethel."

Ethel and her mother had another talk that night.

"Millions—think of it, mother!"

"It would mean luxuries and travel and almost everything, but Jerry's father a drawback, isn't he?"

"Oh, we could educate him, polish him up. He means well, and if anyone asks you, I think I'll annex Jerry and his millions, especially the latter."

"Well, money means a lot."

The next time Jerry saw Ethel he stammered around and finally managed to say: "Er—Ethel, can I come over Friday night? I simply got to ask you an important question."

"Why, of course, Jerry."

THE IMPORTANT QUESTION

So Ethel tried to look more charming than usual, which was difficult, and Jerry came. After a few minutes of talk they went out to the side porch and sat on the glider hammock.

"Look, Ethel, about that important question—er—"

"Yes, Jerry."

"I got a bid to Alderman Sweeney's reception. Now can I wear white flannel pants with a Tuxedo coat?"

Ethel stared at him and arose. She seemed to be choking. Finally she spoke. She said: "By all means, Jerry; it's just the proper thing for you to wear."

The next day Wally was mowing his lawn again. Ethel sauntered over. Wally eyed her suspiciously.

"Why should I marry you?" Ethel asked, calmly.

"The answer to that, as I remember what you said, was 'Ha-ha.'"

"No, Wally, the answer to that is 'Because I crave to marry you.'"

"I'm going to kiss you," said Wally, staring at her.

"Why the delay?" asked Ethel.

Trading With Gangsters

Nation Treated to Spectacle of Racketeers Specifying Penalties They Will Accept

It does not please the people when they read that gangsters, [illegible] have friendly meet[illegible] with judges or prosecuting attorneys to discuss "a nice [illegible] sentence."

It does not please them to read of an Al Capone in court [illegible] when told:

"No deal has been made to let you off easily."

Immediately he [illegible] his plea of "guilty" and will fight it out.

In New York a man accused of many murders, notorious [illegible] as a profession and accused of causing his [illegible] for various reasons, accompanied by his lawyers discusses with public officials or judges just what he [illegible] in the way of a sentence if he decides to plead guilty.

The people would like their courts to deal with gangsters without any consultations with the gangsters or their lawyers.

They do not like to think that professional lawbreakers and murderers can make with justice the deals that they make with police, enforcement officials and others.

You cannot imagine in other civilized countries a meeting between the criminal, his lawyer and a judge, plus, perhaps, a representative of the income tax department, to discuss how long the criminal will "consent" to go to jail, and what larger or smaller sum he will condescend, out of his criminal earnings, to hand to the income tax collector.

Graft, murder, bootlegging, gangster racketeering conditions are bad enough.

It would be a little too much if the racketeer could say to his lawyer:

"I am about ready to quit, go see the judge and make the best deal you can, and talk to the income tax people, I will give them a little something, if they are not unreasonable. Take my little rap (gangster word for sentence) then come out and go straight (straight to Paris or straight back to the racket)."

Men who make law breaking a profession, and murder a part of their profession, should not have private hearings with judges or make private deals with justice.

Gangster criminals are well described in an article signed by William Randolph Hearst as follows:

> These criminals shoot down people in the street.
> They levy tribute on honest business men.
> They abduct women.
> They slaughter children.
> They corrupt law enforcing machinery.
> They buy judges.
> They subsidize political organizations.

Mr. Hearst asks:

"What are the American citizens going to do about it!"

One thing we should not do, we should not sit by, smiling, while gangsters make their deals with judges and prosecuting officials, "squaring everything" by a payment from the proceeds of their murderous careers by way of income tax "salve" to the national government.

Good Detectives Needed

Many Unsolved Crimes Call Attention to Deficiency in City and County Protective System.

A Negro robber shot a man fatally in the drug store at Sixth avenue and Wood street Monday, rifled his victim's pockets, and escaped.

The home of a coal miner at Coverdale was blown up the same day by dynamite.

Are these atrocious deeds to go down in police annals as mere additions to the long list of unsolved crimes that have been accumulating with such terrifying rapidity in recent months?

The question directs attention to the lack of detective skill. There is a deficiency both in the city and county forces of reasoning power, of the ability to see beneath the surface, of the faculty for utilizing slight clues in tracking criminals.

Politics is to blame.

Blue Law Balks Charity

Another Good Reason for Repealing the Ban on Sunday Amusements Is Given by Director Clark.

Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, is perfectly right in his contention that the proposed Sunday evening theatrical performance for the benefit of the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged would be in violation of the Blue Law.

Of course, however, many other things less praiseworthy, with which he does not interfere, are also in violation of the law.

It is a pity that such an admirable philanthropy should have had to come under the ban of the police. But Director Clark was only doing his duty. If he would only be as zealous in enforcing the laws against gambling and bootlegging and racketeering, there would be no ground for criticism.

The Director has called attention to another good reason for repealing the Blue Law.

The Helping Hand

Improvement of the Monongahela Wharf Is a Benefit for Which the People Will Be Grateful.

It has remained for the Helping Hand Society to render a service of which Pittsburgh has long been in need—the improvement of the appearance of the Monongahela wharf.

Various obstacles having arisen to thwart the efforts of those who sought to have the work done by the city, the unemployed men enjoying the bounty of the Helping Hand have been pressed into service.

They are repaving the wharf between Grant and Smithfield street, mostly with the present bricks.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the contracting firm of Booth & Flinn are furnishing tools and equipment.

Now if shrubbery can be obtained without cost the promise is made that a part of the wharf will be landscaped. Will not some philanthropist provide this material?

ANCIENT STARS

—By Archibald Henderson—

It is customary for the historians of science as a rule to dismiss with but a slight and passing mention all astronomy before Copernicus. Yet there is much of curious interest in the history of the efforts of man, unguided by any spirit of organized science, to arrive at the truth. In view of all the immense difficulties—the lack of suitable instruments of precision, the imperfect nature of the so-called knowledge of the day, the gross superstition of early peoples, the adverse attitude of religion towards science, its purposes and aims—in view of all these difficulties and obstacles, it is remarkable how much was actually accomplished.

According to Hector McPherson in his Modern Cosmologies, the early cosmologies or theories of the constitution of the universe fell into three groups. These may be entitled the mythological, the philosophical and the scientific. In a world dominated by a sort of Pantheism, in which nature was conceived as peopled with warring deities, there was little or no chance for the development of any sort of rational cosmology. A sharp distinction was drawn by the Hebrew prophets between the study of gods and the study of nature and natural phenomena. Divination by means of the stars or astrology gave a certain starting to the scientific idea of studying the stars for their own sake. Of course, the priest-astronomers of Nineveh and Babylon believed that the stars controlled human destiny and there are people who still believe this. But in order to study the stars at all, for whatever purpose, it is necessary to assume an ordered world.

As McPherson correctly puts it, the astrologers of Assyria were able to predict a solar eclipse and those of Babylon to calculate in advance the future positions of Sun and Moon and planets with a fair degree of accuracy. The work of these Semitic star-gazers prepared the way for the cosmologies of the Greek philosophers.

The early Babylonians were pioneers in their observation of the stars and in turning their astronomical discoveries to some practical account. Herodotus records that the pole and the gnomon and the division of the day into 12 parts the Greeks learned from the Babylonians. Miletus, where Thales was born, early came into touch with Babylonian life and culture. Thales was doubtless familiar with the tables of the Babylonians, as he was able to predict an eclipse of the Sun. A founder of the first school of philosophy, Thales inaugurated the study of nature for its own sake.

LISTEN, WORLD

—By Elsie Robinson—

"What do you think of anonymous letters?" says she, telling me all about a couple of mean ones.

What do I think of anonymous letters? Nothing. But once upon a time I did. In a job like this one receives hundreds—vicious, obscene, sneering, threatening missives, all unsigned. And when I took this job those letters got my goat—plenty. They made me furious, used up hours of valuable time, wasted countless kilowatts of precious energy. Sometimes a particularly nasty one would demoralize me for days.

Then gradually I got sense. I saw that was exactly what the writers of those letters desired. They wanted to demoralize me. In a nightmare way they NEEDED to demoralize me IN ORDER TO AGGRANDIZE THEMSELVES.

One thing was evident in all the letters: they were all written by cowardly weaklings, who resented their weakness and envied others their superior strength and happiness. Being weaklings, they could not win strength and happiness as normal man and woman do. They could only attain a sense of power by taking the strength and happiness away from someone else. They could not MAKE—but they could BREAK and gratify their feverish, frustrated egotism by breaking. That was the reason for their anonymous letters. . . . AND EVERY TIME I LET THOSE LETTERS GET MY GOAT I WAS PLAYING INTO THEIR HANDS. I was actually giving those vicious creatures power over me . . . letting them walk into my life, disarrange my thoughts, wreck my plans, rob me of my peace of mind.

I would not have allowed some rowdy stranger to walk into my home or my office in that way and smash or steal my possessions. Yet I permitted these anonymous stingarees to raise havoc with infinitely more precious and powerful possessions, with the things of the spirit upon which all my happiness and strength depended.

"But what can I do about it? I'm helpless," said I to myself.

And for a long while I really believed I was helpless. But, of course, I wasn't, and in time I discovered that fact. I could not, it is true, stop people from writing anonymous letters. BUT I COULD STOP MYSELF FROM FUSSING ABOUT THEM.

I had been given a brain. That brain could think. It could also choose which thoughts it would think. It could open its door to certain thoughts and emotions. It could just as surely CLOSE ITS DOOR AGAINST OTHER THOUGHTS AND FEELINGS. And it was up to me to see that it DID close its door against vicious thoughts and feelings. I wasn't to blame if people wrote vile letters, but I was to blame if I let those letters demoralize me. FOR IT WAS MY DUTY TO GUARD MY MIND AGAINST ENEMY INFLUENCES.

But some people are so sensitive they can't "shut" things out like that," you say.

Piffle! Nine-tenths of our "sensitiveness" is just a fancy alibi for laziness and spinelessness and conceited coddling. Any character with an ounce of spunk can guard itself against malice exactly as it guards itself against other nuisances. The world is full of vulgar sights and horrid experiences. We must all deal with mud, filth, disease, foul odors, carrion. If we let such things demoralize us, we would never have an hour's peace or progress. Even the dumbest of us know that—and manage to insulate themselves against such offense—manage to create AN IMPERSONAL ATTITUDE to inevitable disturbance.

It is just as possible to do this with MALICE, which is simply another form of filth. If cockroaches don't wreck your day, anonymous letter writers shouldn't. They're all the same breed.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

In Absence

As a rosebud dreams of sunlight,
As a lark desires the dawn,
So do my fond thoughts linger
With you who now are gone.

Each trick of look or laughter
That made the hours gay
Comes back like drifting perfume
The while you are away.

In days when I went clasping
Your hand within my own
The thought of you was not more near
Than now, that you have flown.

But with the morn returning
The lark will sing anew,
And I will thrill to music on
The day that brings me you!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

Do you feel superior to the people with whom you work?

Do you refuse to attend their outings or take part in them, at least half-heartedly?

If you are fitted by education and special ability to fill a better position, would you not be holding such a place?

If not holding it, what excuse could you make that would allow you to snuff at those with whom you work for a living?

Those who are your business associates may not be as polished as you.

Their ways may jar on your sense of propriety.

But have they no cause to complain of your ways?

While they may fail to measure up to your standard in certain ways, you may lack some of their fine principles.

Are you not trying to assume a character which is really foreign to your make-up?

Perhaps your breeding and accomplishments are not so fine as you pretend and you seek to create an impression that does not exist in fact.

If so, real people can sense it and will look for verification.

Be a real person, be a good sport in any position in which you may be placed.

A 'Sport of Kings' Revived

A Contrast in Types of Men.

"HAWKING," ANCIENT HUNTING SPORT, FROM A MODERN AUTOMOBILE

In old days, before shotguns or rifles, men that wanted to kill birds for food or sport did their "shooting" with hawks, as you see in this picture.

The king, his lady, his courtiers and their wives, rode out in their fine clothes, each carrying on his wrist a favorite hawk or two.

Among the savage rulers of Asia, the finest present that one could give to another was a hawk, powerful on the wing and sure in the killing.

The hawks on the wrist of the ancient sportsman, or sitting on a perch as you see them in the automobile, all wore "hoods" covering their eyes, the hoods taken off when they were launched against the bird to be captured.

Unable to see with hoods, they sat quietly awaiting orders. When a desired bird was seen overhead the hood was removed, the hawk released, and, flying with swiftness greater than that of the other bird, overtook his terrified prey and brought it to the ground.

The days of hawking for food have gone by. Any shotgun will bring down the "driven" grouse or pheasant, no matter how swiftly he may sail before the wind.

Hawks are a part of the past, and the "mews" in which they were kept are still called "mews," as you may have noticed in London, but there are no hawks in them.

The people in this picture, reviving the old sport, for the lack of some better intellectual occupation, find justification for their amusement in the fact that they send the hawks after rooks, a sort of small crow, said to ruin crops in England. Our own Agricultural Department would tell you that crows, destroying field mice and other harmful creatures, usually do more good than harm. Perhaps the rook has different habits.

This picture is interesting, showing how men, with the hunting instinct born in them, hundreds of thousands of years ago, still turn to every kind of sport, from chasing small fox over fences to shooting lions in Africa, tigers in India or giant bears in the Far North.

Another type of man engaged in developing the flying machine, which is the modern bird, or the submarine, which is the modern fish, is more useful, of course, than the humans that waste their time reviving dead sports like hawking or greyhound racing.

Fortunately, there is room for ALL kinds of us. And those that waste their time will gradually disappear as the human race improves.

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

PARIS, Aug. 7. The Parisian revue, once the model for this type of theatricals the world over, has reached such a stage of decadence it has become the shoddiest entertainment on the continent. Once its fleshly vulgarity was softened by the sheer dazzle of its scenic beauty.

But not any more. The Folies Bergere, leading exponent of such presentations, embers the cheap [illegible] of those recent 42d burlesque shows with about the same tawdry [illegible] mechanics. Last year it was bad enough, but this year it is the worst imaginable. The tune hit is "Why" boldly swiped.

The most offensive spot in the current exhibit is a naked couch dance by a black buck and his saddle-colored mate, likely never duplicated for suggestiveness in the most abandoned circus list. Even French [illegible] not so ticklish about such dishes [illegible]. And a gentleman from Atlanta stormed out.

The only excuse for the entire performance was a graceful quartet of adagio dancers who twirled a sylph-like blonde in breathless swoops. They seemed as out of place as a stevedore at a Park avenue tea. Lemercier, French chanteur who was billed for America, but feared seasickness, was the star. Also author.

The Folies was originally designed for cosmopolitan crowds gravitating to Paris. The program is printed still in French, German, English and Spanish, but its thin patronage the night we were there was mostly Americans who all seemed to feel a bit shame-faced.

The institution has become a trap for what is known as "yokel yanking." Missing somehow the ubiquitous program [illegible] in entering, I asked an usher to send one. A Frenchman pays a franc for a program. I tendered five francs and the attendant stood impertinently with hand outstretched for more.

Yet visiting the Folies was not without a silver lining. In departing Mrs. Ray Long, in our party, found a purse on the pavement outside containing more than $600. We spent hectic hours running down the owner and found her at 3 a. m. in a modest pension, a gold star mother, frantic over her loss.

* * *

Nothing is so intricately paradox as the French mind. A native will stand in the rain reading a newspaper. Leisure hours are spent in the woods. He dines al fresco, drinks his aperitif in the open and loves his garden. But once inside his home, he fastens down windows, bars the doors, stuffs the cracks and lives in utter suffocation.

* * *

Paris, like New York, is glutted with new unfilled apartments. They are starkly modern, built for the increasing number of Americans. In contrast, however, is a slump in flats for middle-class dwellers. I love the names of some of the new buildings for the Yank trade, such as "The View Exquisite," "The Home Lovely" and "The Paradise of Windows."

* * *

Today in a boucherie chevaline, where the gilt head of a horse over the door proclaims the selling of horse meat, I saw a woman butcher. Oddly she was a fragile, wisp-like girl with a prettily bobbed head. Wielding a keen-edged knife she was slicing meat for a customer and seeing me pressed against the cage-like bars of such places we exchanged smiles. Somehow I went on slightly confused. In Paris and flirting with a butcher!

* * *

On the Avenue de la Opera this afternoon I saw one of those black glass and gold language school signs so typical of Paris trading. "Learn our list of 1,000 words and go anywhere in France." I've been getting by for years with a "oui, oui" and an "encore."

* * *

Driving along an obscure road between Paris and Versailles this afternoon, Raymond, the chauffeur, pointed to an imposing infirmary-like building and explained: "A hospice where they take old men no longer account in the world." Instinctively I snatched down the window curtain and told him to drive lickety-split for Paris and not to spare the carburetor!
